residents list needs

PLEASANTON - If you had a wish, which community need would you wish to be met?

Valley service providers and 282 town residents cited transportation. youth services, emergency and crisis services, senior services, recreation and health services as the primary community needs, according to a needs assessment survey released Friday.

The draft report prepared by the Alameda Couty Training and Employment Board/ Associated Community Action Program (ACTEB-ACAP) goes before the human services commission Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in council chambers at 30 West Angela Street for approval.

Months of surveys and study reveals that Pleasanton residents want to retain a small-town atmosphere, yet increase economic development and employment in town. Light industry and commercial retail business were the most favorable types development. And 71 percent of survey respondents said the city should place a two percent growth rate on the city, as currently planned in the proposed residential allocation program now before the city council.

Thirteen percent of those surveyed called for no growth at all.

In a suburban community inhabited by mostly white middle to upper income professionals or skilled workers, men targeted recreation as a primary need, while women indicated emergency and crisis services are most necessary. Older people cited transportation as their biggest need, young people called for child care and apartment dwellers looked for legal services and housing ser-

Almost half of those questioned said they need services which aren't offered in town. Overwhelmingly they indicated transportation and most favored a BART extension.

Residents pointed to vandalism and traffic control as major problems here, perhaps explaining why many surveyed feel more recreation and youth services from 13 to 20-year-olds are needed.

Representatives of organizations already providing services said low cost thereapy and emergency housing were services needed, but not available.

The city will also likely note with interest that 58 percent of those surveyed said they would support a $1 million bond issue to develop parkland owned by the city.

House fire

DUBLIN - A Christmas tree inadvertently ignited when it was dragged over a stove, caused an estimated $30,000 in damages to the Robert Crauss residence at 8657 Davona Dr. early Monday afternoon.

Two units of the Dublin-San Ramon Services District Fire Department contained the fire within minutes after it was reported at 1:26

Zone 7 to need costly update?

Women priests accepted

Susan Bergmans who was ordained in Pleasanton a year ago is one of over 90 women ordained as an Episcopal priest since church leaders voted to allow female ordination, but despite vocal opposition to the policy from some factions, relatively few church members have dropped out, according to a church survey.

Rev. Bergmans is no longer with St. Clare's Episcopal Church in Pleasanton, but Senior Warden Ralph Calabrese assured, "Everything was in complete harmony" when she left.

Although the survey showed that 3400 members of the 2.9 million-member church decided in 1977 to leave the church because of the ordination of women, prayer book revisions or alleged "secular or humanistic" trends in the church, no one in the Pleasanton church left because of Rev. Bergmans presence according to Calabrese.

"I can say for a fact that no one left for that reason," said Calabrese, adding that some "staunch" members may have chosen services where Rev. Bergmans was not in attendance.

The survey, based on informal questionnaires to domestic dioceses, as well as additional reports, showed that in addition to the women ordained in the year since the ordination of women was authorized, 62 other women deacons or candiates are headed for the priesthood The church said its survey showed 13 congreations voted to leave the church and 18 voted to withhold funds from national and diocesan church programs. Ten congregations have declined to alllow visits by their bishops. The church has 7192 parishes.

Arguments against ordaining women are rooted in the Bible, said Pleasanton's Calabrese. He said there is some mention that women should not teach men. He added, however, that the Bible can be "twisted" to mean anything anyone wants to say. Afterall, he said, mothers teach sons.

A new regulation being considered by the federal Environmental Protection Agency could force Zone 7. Alameda County Flood Control and Water Conservation District, to spend almost half-a-million dollars updating the district's two water treatment plants.

The regulation now being worked on in Washington would limit the amount of trihalomethanes (THM) in water sold by Zone 7 to 100 parts per billion. THM is a catch-all phrase for organic chemicals which have been linked to cancer in animals. During a November spot check, Zone 7 general manager Mun Mar found the water contained 300 parts per billion THM — triple the limit being considered by the EPA.

"The drought caused intrusion of salt water into the Delta, and that raised the level of THM," said Mar who explained that one sample is not adequate testing as THM levels vary day to day.

Better controlling the district's water supply and adding activated carbon powder to treatment might lower the THM level to the proposed standard, according to Mar. But if those tactics don't work and the regulation passes, Zone 7 would have to either add ozone treatment to its process or put in activated carbon filters into the plants — both expensive actions.

Zone 7 would undoubtedly pass that expense along to customers, according to Mar, adding that any time standards are upgraded cost rises ever time standards are upgraded.

Mar, however, isn't sure if Zone 7 would be immediately affected by the regulation. As drafted, it would mandate that plants serving over 75,000 persons comply with the THM standard, but would only "strongly recommend" smaller plants fall into Zone 7 sells 70 percent of the water used by the valley's 100,000 population. But it is mixed together with the other well water also sold. Thus, one could argue that the district serves 70,000 persons or 100,000 per-

Claiming to be a smaller plant would essentially simply delay compliance, according to Victor Kimm, EPA's deputy adminstrator for water supply

"We do have plans to require even smaller plants to limit THM's eventually," he said.

Most water supplyers have seen this regulation coming and Zone 7 is already studying alternative ways of treating water which would limit THM, yet cost little. No miracle cures have been discovered to date.

"It's all a matter of what you're willing to pay for. If it's a matter of your health or your money, what's more important?," asked Mar, answering his rhetorical question when he added he believes THM limits are inevitable.

Two injured in accident

Two persons were injured early Sunday when a cat ran in front of their car on Hampton Road in Livermore, causing the driver to lose control and strike a parked vehicle, police reported.

Catherine Theresa Cald, 16, of 1327 Lexington Way told officers the car went out of control and struck a vehicle belonging to Andres Rodriguez. Her mother, Carmella Greco, 40, of 1536 Heidelburg Drive, sustained a broken leg and is in good condition at Valley Memorial

State eyes dancing at local club

SAN RAMON — Topless dancing at the Wicked Eye Club has crossed the bounds of propriety in the eyes of the state, local and statp authorities have alleged.

Agents from the state Alcoholic Beverage Control Board and the district attorney's office have reportedly documented six separate incidents at the club, located at 2017 San Ramon Valley Blvd., in which women dancers allegedly went partially nude, according to a report submitted to the district attorney.

Amateur topless contests have been held every Wednesday night at the club since Nov. 23 and include performances from women in their twenties who were recruited by club manager Jim Bantley of Danville, the reported alleged.

County ordinances permit topless dancing in bars, but nudity, or bottomless dancing, is a misdemeanor

Bantley said he plans to continue the Wednesday contests until a Jan. 7 "runoff."

"We've been running this for four weeks, and I give strict orders where the girls dance topless. I try to keep up with the ABC and their laws because I can't afford to get Bantley said no one had informed him of the investigation.

Supreme Court ruling

Cops won't alter methods

The recent U.S. Supreme Court ruling giving police the green light to order drivers from their cars during routine traffic stops will apparently have little effect on Valley police operations.

Local police leaders told The Times that the landmark decision simply clarified the rules under which police had operated for years to protect the safety of officers.

Pleasanton police Captain Ron Nelson said the ruling merely indicated "that what we have been doing all along is correct.

Hasty movements inside a car stopped for a routine traffic stop are good reason to order a driver from his car, Nelson said. "The only reason you get someone out of their car

Transit help for elderly

SACRAMENTO — A program to provide better transportation for California's elderly and handicapped will continue into 1978 because of $1.5 million in federal funds recently apportioned to the state. The Department of Transportation (Caltrans) will continue to administer the program in cooperation with the state's Departments of Aging and Rehabilitation.

The money is provided by the U.S. Urban Mass Transportation Administration (UMTA) to improve public transportation for the elderly and handicapped by paying 80 per cent of the cost of needed transit vehicles.

Organizations interested in the program should contact Jerry Gager or Ben Chuck in the San Francisco office of Caltrans for more information, technical help and forms.

Cityhood chief wants support

DUBLIN — Citizens for Dublin Cityhood (CDC) are being asked to put their stamp of approval on a letter written by CDC Chairman, Dave Burton, to the Alameda County board of supervisors requesting a $1000 fund.

The fund was budgeted last year by county supervisors for the purpose of doing a study on the feasibility of incorporating Dublin. The money was slated to go to the Dublin Chamber of Commerce who proposed to conduct

Later, chamber directors decided to hold off lending their official support until chamber members were polled. The poll showed three to one that members were in favor of the chamber endorsing the issue.

During the interim, chamber directors suggested Burton form a volunteer group of committees to study pros and cons of incorporation. Citizens for Dublin Cityhood However, county supervisors said the $10M0 could not be administered directly to CDC. They stipulated the money would have to be administered by a public Burton approached the Dublin San Ramon Services

District (DSRSD) o directors who agreed to be the fund-However, DSRSD wanted to go a step further and make what directors considered to be a more complete study than the one proposed by CDC. This study would have cost more money, too.

CDC contended the whole study issue was turning into a boondoggle.

DSRSD agreed to back out of the picture as far as being a conduit for the $1000. Burton is seeking approval from CDC members to apply for it. The chamber is also making a bid to supervisors for the fund to be turned over directly to Beverly Lane.

Lane volunteered to do the CDC study for $1000. She has been involved in incorporation efforts and has studied pro and con incorporation issues in connection with her master's thesis.

Burton's letter stated, "There have been discussions about larger studies and greater expenditure of funds but they reflect the concerns of people not necessarily interested in just giving the people of Dublin the opportunity to vote on cityhood. If other factions want to challenge the incorporation or study other options they are welcome to do it but their study should be generated by their own groups. Our committee (CDC) doesn't want them to stall the incorporation movement at this time. It is the CDC's sincere belief that Dublin citizens deserve the opportunity to vote on this issue.....

THE SECOND

The Lawrence Livermore Laboratory employs only two deaf persons, but interest in opening more positions to deaf workers recently prompted a two-day seminar on communicating with deaf employees.

Don Renzulli of Ohlone College coordinated the two-day workshop that included job-related problems of the hearing impaired, problems in personnel interviewing and an introduction to sign language.

Response at the Lab was so encouraging, Renzulli will teach a class in sign language at Livermore High School through Livermore Adult Education. The class will run Wednesday evenings from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m., beginning Jan.

One problem many hearing persons face when dealing with deaf persons, said Renzulli, "is that they base everything about them on their ability to use English, including their intelligence.'

But, since many deaf persons have never even heard what words sound like, their proficiency is naturally impaired, he said.

If a person speaks broken English with a Spanish or Russian accent "the listener is enchanted. But a 'quote' American accent with the same grammatical errors is no longer charming. Not at all," commented Renzulli.

As an example of how persons can be misjudged because of their hearing disabilities, Renzulli pointed to a deaf instructor at Ohlone College. "He was kept in schools for the mentally retarded until he was seven. Now he is working on a PhD.'

Many things are communicated without words, said Renzulli. Often, he said, a hearing person will communicate without a hitch when a deaf person "asks" for the time, or wants a cigarette lighted.

But, the moment the hearing person discovers the person he is communicating with is deaf "he freezes up and goes through a kind of shock and withdrawal.'

As coordinator for the hearing handicapped program at Ohlone College, Renzulli, a hearing person himself, daily communicates with deaf

Most deaf persons, Renzulli said, communicate with American Sign Language (ASL or AMELSAN). But, even without knowing ASL, it is not difficult to communicate with many deaf persons if a few things are remembered. He said it is important to look at the person when speaking and to speak distinctly, but avoid exaggerating lip movements.

A mustache makes it difficult for deaf persons to read lips, as does standing with a bright light behind the speaker. On the job, Renzulli suggested avoiding unnecessary technical and esoteric jargon.

While some signs used in the deaf sign language actually look like the object they represent, many more are simply arbitrary movements that have a significance, said Renzulli.

The grammar of ASL is different from English and cannot be translated word for word, said Renzulli. He emphasized that the sign language grammar is not bad or even condensed English grammar, it is an entirely separate

In addition to signs, finger spelling of letters is also used by deaf persons. Renzulli said many use a combination of ASL and finger spelling.

Each country has developed its own sign language. Because a tree looks different and has a different cultural significance in China than it does in the United States, the symbol representing a tree is different in each country, Renzulli explained. He added, however, that deaf persons traveling have far less trouble communicating with foreign deaf persons than do hearing persons in the same circumstance.

In light of federal legislation requiring equal access to education and jobs for handicapped persons, including the hearing impaired, Renzulli said he expects deaf persons will find far more opportunities open to them than has been in the past.

SOLVE ALL YOUR PROBLEMS HERE

To be of service to you, my readers, I have decided to start the new year right, by solving all your problems. So I first thought I should find out what problems some of you have.

A survey revealed the most prevalent problems among my readers to be: how to tell a boy finch from a girl finch, what to do with three year old refrigerator cookies you forgot to bake, how to get to bed before two o'clock in the morning, how to pass up chocolates when they are offered, being unable to spell while employed as a reporter, what to wear to work, breaking out in bumps after eating the chocolates you couldn't resist, and car problems of all kinds. Then there are the usual issues facing the public: pressure on the job, money problems, sex problems, husband and wife problems, kid problems and worries, fears and guilts of all kinds. Never fear, dear readers. We deal with puzzling predicaments of all sorts.

Willing to go to great expense to find solutions, I bought a weekly tabloid newspaper at the supermarket, which contains ads offering solutions to most of life's problems, large and small.

Inside those hallowed pages lie, and I do mean lie, the miraculous cures for all the world's ills, major and minor. There, on those noteworthy sheets are the answers to our afflictions.

For a mere $7 one may send for a real Aladdin's Lamp, which gets too hot to touch if one utters the legend engraved on the side, and in so doing, it solves all your problems, bringing riches, happiness and success. But when you buy it, you have to promise not to reveal the secret of the lamp to anyone outside your own family. Heavy stuff, but anything for happiness.

"Do you have trouble remembering or concentrating? Do you feel mentally fatigued often? Do you have trouble making decisions?" Brain Fuel is the answer, says the ad.

Brain Fuel is a capsule that contains 35 Hematinics, Nutrients, Amino Acids, Vitamins and Minerals: 100 capsules for $13.50, and that includes the book, perhaps a best seller, "Brain Fuel."

For only $8.98 one may examine the book "Hand Reflexology," for 30 days without risk. The method described relieves arthritis, hemorrhoids and canker sores, they say, and helps cataracts, avoids surgery for slipped disc and helped a man pass a "stone" in ten minutes. What more could one ask?

Star Wars will allow one to become a Star Warrior, for only "Ten 1977 U.S. Earth Dollars. You get ten full-color posters and a magazine. That ought to cure something.

There is a device for only $19.95 that will "strike down any attacker regardless of size or strength," and the "steel cobra" although invisible, they say until you need it, "transforms into an inpenetrable shield of solid steel," protecting you from "mug-gers, rapists and maniacs." If your problems include the above, thank goodness we have found the answer, (and with a 90 day no-risk free trial included, to try it out on muggers, rapists and maniacs). A magnetic energy necklace for $8.65, including postage, will bring you "wealth, peace and happiness, good humor, self-confidence and boundless energy. It has "long-lasting magnetic nodes" that "send invisible waves through your body. Wear it once and you will never want to take it off," say the manufacturers. There is also a product that "hot plates" the insides of your engine with a 50,000 mile protective coating, guaranteed to save as much as $1,437.00 or more. I'm not sure how, exactly. Among the wonder ads in the weekly tabloid is a guarantee of a "full head of hair in 30 days for the low cost of only $69, with financing available." Well, these are the ready solutions to all your problems. Although I haven't tested them personally, you can't say I don't think about you.

People often call poisonous mushrooms "toadstools." The toadstool seems to have gotten its fanciful name because people once believed toads were poisonous and they used certain mushrooms as stools, making them poisonous, too.

Actually, there is no real difference between a toadstool and a mushroom. They are simply two names for one Many mushrooms are good to eat. But there are also many kinds that are very posionous. Popularly, people give the name mushroom to the kinds that can be eaten, and the name toadstool to those which are poisonous.

Botanists, however, do not use the name "toadstool." They simple speak of edible and poisonous mushrooms.

The game was match points and North responded one spade in the hope of getting to a major suit or notrump.

Nothing bad was likely to happen as a result of that but East fired a threeclub bid at South, who decided to pass rather than rebid at the three level. Now North came up with a brilliant or maybe a not so brilliant bid. He called three hearts in the hope that his partner could bid three notrump, but South made his correct call of four hearts. He was old fashioned enough to think that four trumps to the king-queen was good support. What was North to do? He could try five diamonds, but could visualize some more heart bidding by South. Finally, he figured a way to get out of his troubles. He bid a Blackwood four notrump. If South showed two aces he would hope to become dummy at six dia-monds, but South held just one ace and bid five diamonds to show it.

North breathed a sigh of relief, passed and watched his partner make the game with the aid of a successful spade finesse.

Quarterback Joe Montana provided uncanny third-down mastery by converting 8 of 12 clutch situations into Irish first downs against a rugged Texas defense that had kept both Oklahoma and Arkansas from its goal line.

The incredible rout by the touchdown-underdog fifth-ranked Fighting Irish triggered a wild scramble for The Associated Press national championship, to be announced Wednesday.

Ferguson caught a 17-yard touchdown pass from Montana, bolted 3 yards to score and capped the humiliation of the Longhorns with a 26-yard scoring run midway through the fourth period.

Eurick, a reserve halfback, dashed 6 and 10 yards for touchdowns after Texas mistakes. The Fighting Irish, who now own the same 11-1 record as the Longhorns, only had to travel 32, 27, 35, 20 and 29 yards after the stumbling Texans coughed up three fumbles and two interceptions. The raging Irish defense, paced by middle linebacker Bob Golic and the Browner brothers — de-gang-tackling Irish managed to keep him away from the goal.

After Dave Reeve kicked a 47-yard field goal following a Texas fumble, Russell Erxleben tied the game with a 42-yarder.

But Notre Dame again took advantage of Longhorn charity as Jim Browner collected Johnny Ham Jones' fumble and Eurick ripped off his 6-yard run for a 10-3 Irish edge in the second quar-

Notre Dame quickly scored two more touchdowns. Willie Fry pounced on a Randy McEachern fumble on the Texas 35 and Eurick scored on a 10-yard run to make it 17-3.

Linebacker Doug Backer plucked off a wayward McEachern aerial and returning it to the Texas 20. Ferguson then made an acrobatic catch over linebacker Mark Martignoni for a 17-yard touchdown and the stunned crowd watched the scoreboard read: Notre Dame 24, Texas 3.

A controversial interference penalty helped Texas score late in the first half to make it 24-10.

Bo runs out of time — again

PASADENA — "We knew in the second half we'd have to come out smokin'," said a sullen Dwight Hicks. "We did. Unfortunately, time just ran Co-captain Hicks and his fourth-ranked Michigan Wolverines did come on like gangbusters in the second half of their Rose Bowl football game Monday. But 13th-ranked Washington came out like that from the start to upset Michigan 27-20 in a down-to-the-wire thriller.

It was the third consecutive bowl game loss for defensive back Hicks and Coach Bo Schembechler's fifth bowl setback in as many tries — four of them Rose Bowls.

"It hurts," Hicks said. Another senior, All-American guard Mark Donohue, said: "We may have lost all three games I've played in, but I have no regrets.'

To a man, the Wolverines were dejected and angry — at themselves — as they filed through the tunnel into the dressing room. Some were crying.

Moments earlier, with 11/2 minutes left in the game, Washington linebacker Michael Jackson grabbed an interception over the shoulder of freshman tailback Stanley Edwards at the Huskies' 3-yard line to seemingly thrwart Michigan's final comeback bid.

Edwards sobbed in the massive chest of a team-

But the Wolverines got another chance after a punt, only to see cornerback Nesby Glasgow intercept another Rick Leach pass, that one intended for Ralph Clayton at the 7-yard line.

Michigan trailed 17-0 at halftime and 24-0 in the third quarter.

"We never quit," Leach said. "We came back like champions. "I'm still proud."

What did Schembechler tell his players to turn them around so completly? Whatever it was, it wasn't out of an old Ronald Reagan or Pat O'Brien movie. "We don't need speeches," said junior quarterback Leach, who has started all of Michigan's 36 games the past three seasons. "We know what it takes to win football games. We don't need all that rah, rah stuff."

Schembechler said: "I thought when we were behind 17-0 at half we'd win it...we'll come back and try

"I am impressed with this Michigan team, being down so badly and coming back so close to winning. But we didn't win...we just got down too far," the Michigan coach continued.

DENVER strips Raiders of title

Yes, Jack Tatum rattled the fillings in Rob Lytle's teeth. Yes, Lytle fumbled before he was stopped. Yes, Mike McCoy recovered. Yes, the Denver Broncos scored an undes-erved touchdown on the next play. No, the officials — led by hair-whistled head linesman Ed Marion — did not knock the Oakland Raiders out of a second consecutive Super Bowl. No, they did not, as one East Bay newspaper screamed in 60-point type, "Strip Raiders of Title.'

A little hindsight is appropriate. If the officials are to be blamed for Oakland's failure in Sunday's American Football Conference championship game at Denver, then they must share the credit for last season's world championship. Go back to late in the afternoon of December 18, 1976. Remember the dramatic game-ending drive that pushed the Raiders past New England, 21-17, in the opening round of the

The Raiders are at the Patriot 27 with only 52 seconds seperating them from another early departure from the play-offs.

It's third down and Oakland needs 18 yards. Ken Stabler drops back and throws in the direction of Carl Garrett, waiting at the corner of the end zone. Waiting, that is, until Dick Conn and Tim Fox break the play up wth a ferocious assault that brings the end zone crowd to its collective feet, screaming for an interference call.

There was no interference. And the mob howled for the blood of the officials.

If ever the comments sidelined Raider defensive back Neal Colzie made after Sunday's Raider loss to Denver — "Those refs weren't going to get out of the stadium if they gave the ball to us (after Lytle's fumble). It was a home-field call" — rang true, it was this chilly day 13 months ago.

Suddenly, the mob's anger turns to joy as some one notices a piece of yellow cloth fluttering to the soggy turf behind the line of scrimmage. Sugar Bear Hamilton, the Patriot tackle, as been called for roughing Stabler.

"S---," moans Hamilton later, after getting himself tossed out of the game, "touch the bleepin' ball and they call roughing." That fact that touching the ball has nothing to do with such a call is lost on the disconsolate Hamilton.

Oakland gets a first down at the 13-yard line and scores, four plays later on a diving sweep of left end by Stabler and the game is over.

"I thought we got screwed out of it by the refs," Patriot Mike Haynes, the beaten "force" man on Stabler's score, said evenly. The New England press corps, with their much-imitated Bah-sten accent, angrily elbowed and shoved their way into the crowded press box elevator, muttering about the "home field" call that eliminated their hopes of a snow-free January in Southern California. If they chose the same tack their Oakland counterparts used Monday, New England would have been littered with Murdochian prose declaring, "Pats Pocket Picked," or "Oakland, Officials, Overcome." The lord throweth a hankie, the lord bloweth a whistle. He gaveth Oakland a break a season ago, now he has taken a break away.

If you need a key play, try the one that sent Fred Biletnikoff out of the game with a seperated shoulder. Try Bob Swenson's interception to set up Denver's final, clinching, touchdown after Floyd Rice had saved a score moments ealier with a Raider interception.

Point to Carl Garrett's problems as a second-line punt returner, subbing for the injured Colzie. If you need to castigate the officials, point again to the constant man-handling Raider tight end Dave Casper puts up with on Those are only surface elements. Chances are, the Raiders scored three less points than Denver for reasons not apparent to the hungover television viewer.

Twenty-two men are on the field for more than 100 plays during a professional football game. Thousands of individual assignments are missed or made. One fumble - even a costly one — does not a football game make.

"There are no key plays," claimed Raider head coach John Madden after Sunday's debacle. "Agame is 60 minutes long. It doesn't come down to one person or a particular Though Madden tempered his remarks despite a strong belief that Lytle fumbled many Raiders were less cordial.

"They didn't want us to win," said Rice. "The officials are prejudiced against Oakland," said Tatum. "It was all luck, they got all the breaks," said Lester Hayes. But even those who thought they'd been jobbed, included a few realists.

"The play was a big break for Denver," said lineman Pat Toomay, "but we could have overcome it.' "It wasn't just one play," admitted Stabler.

"It was the turnovers they got and the opportunities we missed.'

Even managing general partner Al Davis didn't hold out the play as the end of the world. He saved his fury for an official league statement, claiming that Lytle had been stood up by Tatum and, thus, his progress halted.

Davis claimed the league was making excuses and called the release a big lie, comparable to the explanations for the war in Vietnam. (Only moreimportant) Oakland wasn't eliminated until Denver made two first downs on the game's last sequence to run out the clock. Now, that was a crucial segment. "Even at the end," said Madden. "We thought if we got the ball back, we could win."

They didn't and couldn't and in another part of Mile High Stadium, after the players and reporters had gone home, Bronco coach Red Miller smiled an inner smile of revenge.

For Robert (Red) Miller's last game as offensive coordinator of the New England patriots was played December 18, 1976 at the Oakland Coliseum.

But Stanford's defense stalled the Tiger running game in the third period while Benjamin was marching the Cardinals to a touchdown that put Stanford on top for good at 17-14.

"They forced us to start passing," said McClendon. "Tthink we had to do that. We had to put some points on the board. We had to gamble for it.'

Staubach pulled for his old rival

DALLAS -Roger Staubach was as happy for his old rival, Craig Morton, as for himself after the heavily favored Dallas Cowboys and giant-killer Denver Broncos clawed their way Sunday into pro football's Super Bowl XII

"I got to catch only a part of the Denver-Oakland game on television," said the Cowboys' quarterback nonpareil after cutting down the Minnosota Vikings 23-6, "but, because of Craig, I found myself pulling for the Broncos to win.

"I thought Craig was trememdous. He played hurt. But he hung in there. I have the greatest respect for him. He is a tough competitor. And, for all our rivalry for the Dallas quarterback position seven or eight years ago, we have remained the best of friends.'

Morton, beaten out by Staubach for the Dallas field general post in 1971 and later discarded by both the Cowboys and the New York Giants, led the Broncos to an exciting 20-17 upset of the defending champion Oakland Raiders in call big buddies," Staubach explained, "But we were friends. We respected each other. There never was any bitterness.'

For three years — 1969, 1970 and 1971 — Morton and Staubach fought for the same job, the balance tilting back and forth until mid-1971 when Staubach cemented his grip on the No. 1 quarterback position and never let go.

"If Don Meredith hadn't retired he was only 31 when he quit, you know — and if Morton hadn't got hurt, I never would have got the job and probably would have been traded," Staubach said.

"I consider myself pretty lucky.

Staubach and Morton were drafted in 1965. Morton was the Cowboys' No. 1 draft choice while Staubach, committed to four years' naval duty, was No. 10. In 1969, when Staubach got out of the Navy, Meredith retired.

Despite injuries, Morton was Dallas' No. 1 signal-caller in 1969 and 1970 while Staubach was getting restless.

"We have kept in touch," Stau-bach said. "When we played Den-ver in the last game of the season (won by Dallas 14-6), Morton was given a rest but we had a long talk under the stands.

enth and ninth races, with no daily double.

Feature of the curtain raising card is the $5200 inaugural pace, in which a field of eight horses in the $20,000 claiming bracket will roll away from behind Gil Thompson's mobile starting gate.

Slated for action in the one-mile sidewheeling af- MORNING fair are Busy Time Babe, C.R. Star, Chief piplomat, Duke Woolen, G.C. Childs, J.J. Illegaltender, King Jay A. and Vanadium.

Defending driving champion Shelly Gourdreau will be the sulky behind Chief Diplomat, the probable favorite, while former title holders Steve Desomer and Gene Vallingham rain Busy Time Babe and C.C. Childs, respectively.

New Year and a new diet

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Overweight Americans who lumber from Thanksgiving into New Year's often find their diets are no match against the season's eatings.

Encouraged by Santa Claus and mothers who insist they clean their plates, the fat flounder in mounds of mashed potatoes and plum pudding. Then, like chubby maraschino cherries, they float from the old year into the new on a wave of alcoholic cheers.

Some of America's 30 million fat folk make annual New Year's resolutions promising to join a burgeoning number of exercise clubs and fad diet cults.

Last year, more than 600 persons wrote off pounds through a correspondence diet course offered by two University of Southern California psychologists. The three-month, $150 course includes weekly homework aimed at teaching students how to fight fat by refusing seconds and by girding in advance for binges. Seventeen to 77-year-olds from across the country and overseas have taken the course. losing an average of 15 pounds apiece. The psychologists — Albert and Marlene Marston — have lost the average through behavior modification.

The non-medical diet course seeks to break the clean-your-plate habit by a smorgasbord of homework assignments aimed at raising calorie consciousness and encouraging exercise and assertive behavior.

The year-old course is based on a German diet project that proved treatment by mail was as effective as direct treatment in modifying behavior.

The toughest lesson, the Marstons say, is overcoming the guilt associated with leaving or refusing food — especially during the holi-

"We've been taught that to have a good time, we have to eat mom's Christmas pudding, Marston says.

"On the other hand, the holidays are stressful because we try to cram a lot of good times and experiences into short periods, and stress is a common cause of overeating.

The husband-wife team — along with a four-member staff which reviews weekly homework assignments — advise their students to practice refusing big or second helpings before parties or other eating events.

But, Mrs. Marston adds, "Just having a refusal ready isn't enough. You've got to have a second and third response in case the person offering you food says something like, 'Oh, but I worked so hard to make it. 'You could say, "I know it's probably fabulous, but I'll end up wanting too much because you're the best pecan pie-maker around." If that fails, the Marstons suggest eating less

The psychologists also suggest learning to leave food. "Throw it out, save it for tomorrow or wrap it up and send it to a starving child in Bangladesh," Mrs. Marston says.

She adds that dieters should celebrate the holidays with exercise — such as dancing — or by making "Stop" signs for their refrigera-

Dieters may eat anything they wish, the Marstons say, as long as calories are kept to a budget based on individual goals. Taking chocolate away from a candy addict builds tension that could lead to overeating, Marston says.

CURRENT ANNUAL RATE CURRENT ANNUAL BONUS

Announcing World Savings' Bonus Account. It offers the best of both Worlds!

Passbook type advantages plus the interest of a certificate.

Do you want the higher interest of a certificate, but feel uncomfortable tying up your money-afraid you'll incur a substantial interest penalty for early withdrawal?

Then our Bonus Account can give you the best of both worlds.

The minimum deposit to start your account is $1000 or more. Your account will earn interest at our current annual passbook rate of 51/4% (the highest rate any savings and loan can pay on insured passbook savings).

At the end of 90 days, World will add the bonus to your account at the current annual rate of 1/2%. That comes to a whopping 53/4% current annual rate after just 90 days!

"534% is great! But what if I withdraw funds?"

No problem. You collect your bonus at the end of each quarter. Any money you withdraw since you earned your last bonus still earns our current passbook rate. After your initial 90 day qualifying period, you never earn less than our passbook rate!

"So it goes in quarterly cycles. I can wait for my bonus, or withdraw in between."

Exactly. You'll always qualify for your bonus on funds you leave on deposit for a full calendar quarter. And you can withdraw your funds-without penalty the last 3 working days of each quarter (March, June, September, December).

There are only a couple of restrictions. Federal regulations prohibit payment of any interest on principal withdrawn within the first 90 day period. And while you can open your account for amounts of $1000 or more, additional deposits are not permitted.

If you want the advantages found in passbook savings, plus the higher interest of a certificate, then come to World Savings for a Bonus Account. And get the best of both worlds!
